

from the domination of the small senatorial and House Speaker's coteries.

"We confess some doubt," the paper adds, "as to whether Mr. Taft is deeply interested in this matter."

The President strikes out into Iowa, another stronghold of the insurgents, after leaving Minnesota, and there are indications that he will be obliged to face the tariff question before audiences there.

Berry Reception.

The President arrived in Minneapolis shortly before 8 o'clock this morning, and began his day with a breakfast at the Minneapolis Club, where he is quartered as the guest of the reception committee of the Twin Cities.

There was an automobile ride through the business and residence sections of Minneapolis, around the lake shore drives, to the Soldiers' Home, where the President reviewed a double line of blue-uniformed veterans, then proceeded to Fort Snelling, where there was a review of the regular troops stationed there and a brief reception at the Officers' Club.

At the President's party, entered the military reservation the Chief Executive was met by a troop of cavalry and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired.

Leaving Fort Snelling, the party crossed the river into the outskirts of the city of St. Paul, and after a brief stop at the Town and Country Club, motored direct into the city, where the President was entertained at a luncheon served on the vast stage of the Soldiers' Home.

The luncheon had been concluded the temporary partitions separating the stage from the main body of the auditorium were lifted and the President faced an audience which filled floors and galleries to their utmost capacity. As the crowd had assembled during the luncheon each person had been presented with a small American flag, and when the President turned from his seat at the table he looked out upon a fluttering sea of waving colors.

After a brief speech, the President was driven to the State Capitol, where it had been intended that a public reception should be held. This feature was called off on account of Governor Johnson's illness, and the President appeared for only a few minutes on the south balcony to express to the great crowd on the terrace his gratitude for the cordial greetings.

The President was then driven back to Minneapolis for a three hours' rest before starting for the banquet tendered him to-night at the Minneapolis Auditorium by the city.

No Reference to Tariff.

During the day the President made no reference to the tariff. Last night's Winona speech, in which the President made clear his attitude with reference to the Payne bill and those members of the Republican party who voted for and against that measure, evidently made a deep impression in this section, and representatives of both the "tariffers" and "anti-tariffers" elements in this center of "insurgency" were taken somewhat aback by the thoroughness of the President's statement.

Representative James A. Tawney, of Minnesota, in voting for the tariff bill was upheld by the President, participated in the Twin Cities' entertainment to-day.

In his address at the St. Paul Auditorium the President, after his tribute to Governor Johnson, said:

"And now, my friends, I don't feel altogether a stranger to an audience in this magnificent structure in St. Paul, for I remember that the kindly favor of the distinguished Archbishop of St. Paul, although I was suffering somewhat from an over-festivity at Minneapolis, I was enabled to express to you something of the gratitude for your cordial reception. "When we entered upon this scene, and there was nothing before us but Old Glory, I had borne in upon me what this greeting means. It means that you have seized an opportunity of the coming of the titular head of your country to express by your welcome to him the deep feeling of patriotism and pride in your nation that you are glad to manifest when opportunity offers."

Compliment for Twin Cities.

"It is a great privilege for one to come here and meet the men who have made your two cities. You go to other cities in the East and you find that they are the city of a hundred and fifty years to find the men who laid the foundations, but here when you are invited to the numerous luncheons and banquets you meet the makers of Minneapolis and St. Paul right at your side."

"And apparently, too, you do not have to have the youngest men to build up your city. You take men of middle life and bring them out here and you find that they are a spirit that makes them young again, and they become the old settlers of Minneapolis and St. Paul."

"My friends, I am beginning a long tour—15,000 miles. I am going around to see what is in this country. I am going to convince the country, if I can, that I have staying qualities to meet all the dangers to which a man may be exposed by way of train travel and digestion."

Speaks at Banquet.

President Northrup, of the University of Minnesota, presided at the Minneapolis banquet. The President was down on the program for a speech, but Mayor James C. Haynes and Congressman Frank A. Bland, of Minnesota, speakers beside President Taft. Among others seated at the speakers' table were United States Senators Knapp and Nelson, of Minnesota, and Archbishop Ireland. President Northrup's introduction of Congressman Nye as a man who had returned from a long absence from the Cannon's mouth, brought a good laugh from Mr. Taft and others at the speakers' table. It was late when President Taft began his speech. He spoke on the proposed income tax.

The President spoke again of Governor Johnson, saying that he was a tribute to his personality. Mr. Taft said he had no doubt that St. Paul and Minneapolis were the great metropolises of the Northwest.

The President said he did not regard himself as a ruler at all. It gave him "goose flesh" to hear anybody talk of the ruler and the ruled. He said that he had no doubt that the President, he said, but the limitation upon that power, Mr. Taft added that

All Berry Suits are made to order one suit at the time.

Machines are used where machine work is most effective, the rest of the work being done by the hands of expert tailors under our own supervision and according to our own specifications.

In this way we can produce much better garments at a price than can be bought in the open market because the manufacturers' expensive selling campaign is eliminated.

If you're particular about your appearance, you'll look into this.

the real responsibility for legislation rests upon Congress. Yet the President is held responsible, said Mr. Taft, although he exercises very little political control.

This was taken by the President as a plain intimation by the President that blame for the Payne tariff bill ought to be laid, not at his door, but at the door of Congress itself.

Speaking of the Constitution, the President said that if one really wanted to appreciate it, he ought to read it side by side with the modern Constitution of Oklahoma.

of Commander Peary. Commander Peary adheres to his determination not to disclose the proofs he says he has against Dr. Cook until the direct claim of Dr. Cook, with his records, is submitted.

The commander was shown a dispatch from Washington that the Geographical Society would like to acknowledge both polar claims, but in view of the dispute must technically decline to accept either until the matter has been investigated, and he said: "That suits me."

Harry Whitney, who is on the schooner Jeannie, is liable to arrive in touch with civilization any day now from his polar bear hunt on the coast of Greenland. He is reported to have Dr. Cook's records in his possession, and it is held here that Whitney has stated that Dr. Cook told him he had been at the pole. It is also said that Whitney is going to South America with Dr. Cook on a hunting expedition.

Western Republicans Up in Arms Over Taft's Winona Speech—Extreme Bitterness Displayed by State Leaders.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

DES MOINES, Ia., September 18.—President Taft's Winona speech was down on the program for a speech, but Mayor James C. Haynes and Congressman Frank A. Bland, of Minnesota, speakers beside President Taft. Among others seated at the speakers' table were United States Senators Knapp and Nelson, of Minnesota, and Archbishop Ireland. President Northrup's introduction of Congressman Nye as a man who had returned from a long absence from the Cannon's mouth, brought a good laugh from Mr. Taft and others at the speakers' table. It was late when President Taft began his speech. He spoke on the proposed income tax.

The President spoke again of Governor Johnson, saying that he was a tribute to his personality. Mr. Taft said he had no doubt that St. Paul and Minneapolis were the great metropolises of the Northwest.

The President said he did not regard himself as a ruler at all. It gave him "goose flesh" to hear anybody talk of the ruler and the ruled. He said that he had no doubt that the President, he said, but the limitation upon that power, Mr. Taft added that

One of the passengers on the Roosevelt must have been Dan Cupid, and the first North Pole romance in the world's history is told by Commander Peary. It concerns one of the four Eskimos who were with Peary at the North Pole, Okeevah by name, and Evaloo, an attractive nineteen-year-old Eskimo girl. Evaloo's mother died and her father, Ikavah, married again. Evaloo was not happy with her stepmother. She fell in love with Okeevah and they wished to get to housekeeping in their snow igloo, but Ikavah objected.

Commander Peary told the natives that four men would be chosen to go to the highest latitude. He could not tell in advance who they would be because it would depend on who gave the best services on the earlier march. It was his intention, he said, to bestow a number of presents on these four on their return. If they reached the pole, he would give to each of the four, guns and ammunition, tent cloth, lumber and complete furnishings for a house.

Okeevah Applies.

Okeevah, who is only twenty-four, and had never been on the ice with Peary, heard of the commander's announcement and applied for the privilege of being one of the four to go to the front.

He said that if he reached the pole and secured the presents he would get the consent of Evaloo's father. Peary told him that he would give him a chance to be one of the heroes of the expedition if he withstood the grueling marches up to the point where a dash was to be made to the pole.

From the moment of taking leave of Evaloo, Okeevah proved one of the most devoted members of the polar party, displaying wonderful endurance in contrast with the old experienced men of the tribe. Peary's system is the survival of the fittest—men, dogs and sledges and love triumphed.

Okeevah went to the pole with Peary and won his bride.

On the return to Itiltohe they were married under the Stars and Stripes. Commander Peary gave to them their wedding presents, and they had their honeymoon on the Roosevelt during the ten days the steamer remained in port.

Preparations Complete.

SYDNEY, N. S., September 18.—All the preparations for the civic reception are complete. After the water parade, in which every boat owner in the harbor has signified an intention of participating, Commander Peary will come ashore at Rhodes, Curry & Co.'s wharf, where he will be received by the city officers and later presented with flowers by a bevy of young women. The school children will have a holiday and will take part in the landing proceedings.

The citizens' dinner in honor of the returning explorer will be held on Tuesday night at the Sydney Hotel, and will be preceded by a reception at the Royal Cape Breton yacht-club quarters. Mrs. Peary said this morning that the commander would probably remain until the latter part of next week, and from hence proceed to his home on Eagle Island before reporting in person at Washington.

Does Not Doubt Cook.

BELLIN, Sweden, Sept. 18.—The polar controversy continues to control the attention of the German scientists. Dr. Erich von Drygalski, professor of geography at the University of Munich and the most noted German polar explorer, has written an article for a forthcoming magazine, in which he says that Dr. Cook is a thoroughly serious scientific and trustworthy man, only differing from other well-known explorers in that he prepares and carries out his plans quietly.

Whoever knows Dr. Cook, says Dr. Drygalski, does not doubt the truth of his statements.

Professor Manitz, astronomer and geographer at the Posen Academy, who took part in Arctic exploration in 1878, agrees with this. Professor Manitz ruled out the Eskimo testimony in both cases, as untrustworthy and irrelevant. Both stories, he says, stand or fall upon the scientific data furnished, and he declares himself as being unable to understand what grounds Peary's story could be accepted if Cook's were rejected.

Scientists in Dresden strongly favor Dr. Cook, but believe that the explorers reached the pole. The Dresden Geographical Society has invited both to lecture under its auspices.

Kirkwood Mitchell.

Kirkwood Mitchell is one of the new men elected to the present Council. He represents Henry Ward, in which he succeeded Major Huntington Curry. Since his advent into the Council Mr. Mitchell has given much of his attention to the work of the committee for the introduction of the patented "Boulevard" lamps into general use in the city, a project which has several times met defeat in the Council. He is also a member of the new Committee on Relief of the Poor, which has had in charge the reorganization of the almshouse, and of the Committee on Cemeteries. Mr. Mitchell is secretary and treasurer of the American Bread and Baking Company, and is well known in club circles.

"A Remarkable Invigorating Remedy"

Thus spoke Mr. J. M. Rittenhouse, a well-known and highly respected business and church man of Norristown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Rittenhouse, full of vigor, hale and hearty, celebrated their golden wedding last year surrounded by their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

In an interview Mr. Rittenhouse said: "I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for many years and find it most beneficial and invigorating to body, brain and nerve. I am troubled with malaria and find your medicinal whiskey a wonderful help to check it. When used as prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a remarkable remedy."

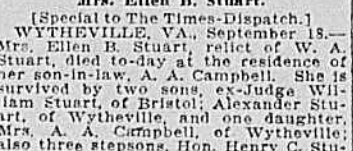

This case is similar to that of thousands of men and women who have been kept hale, hearty and vigorous far beyond the threescore and ten mark by the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a medicine. It is a food requiring no digestion, which has a stimulating and tonic effect upon the system.
